AMUSEMENTS.

—That beautiful and delightful play, "The Little Christian," is one of the early attractions coming here. This play has attracted more attention and drawn larger audiences than any other which has held the boards during the last decade, and it is the repeated request from managers who have played the attractions, asking for a return date. At the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, Nov. 18.

JOHN GRIFFITH'S "MACBETH."

—The announcement of the coming engagement in this city, of John Griffith on Wednesday, Nov. 25th, carries with it a great deal of interest to the best class of theatregoers, and this interest is intensified by the fact that he will present Shakespeare's immortal tragedy, "Macbeth," which although it was first played fully three hundred years ago, has been seen by very few people in this community, so that it really possesses the quality of novelty. Mr. Griffith's presentation of it will have no ost adequate aid in the very excellent company he has selected, and the splendid scenic equipment furnished by his management. Many novel and thrilling electrical effects and chemical illusions have been added and the performance in its entirety will be the most important event in the season's theatrical history. Mr. Griffith is personally a most interesting character, a combination of the mental and physical—in appearance he suggests the peerless Edwin Forrest, and the frame and strength of the champion pugilist, James Jeffries, while mentally, he is one of the greatest students of the day, of classic literature and is fairly a crank on the works of the divine bard, Shakespeare.
